1. INTRODUCTION

The Companies Act 1967 (“Companies Act”) has been amended to introduce registers of registrable controllers of companies under the new Part 11A which came into effect on 31 March 2017. These amendments are accompanied by a new set of subsidiary legislation - the Companies (Register of Controllers and Nominee Directors) Regulations 2017 (the “Regulations”) which also took effect on 31 March 2017.

This Guidance is issued by the Accounting and Corporate Regulatory Authority (“ACRA”) to help companies understand and comply with the requirements pertaining to the register of registrable controllers. This Guidance is not intended to be exhaustive and does not constitute legal advice. Companies may wish to seek legal advice when in doubt.

2. REQUIREMENTS AT A GLANCE

Companies are required to:

- maintain a register of registrable controllers containing the particulars of the company’s registrable controllers (section 386AF of the Companies Act);
- take reasonable steps to identify the registrable controllers of the company, including sending notices to any person whom the company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe is a registrable controller of the company, or has knowledge of someone who is a registrable controller or is likely to have that knowledge (section 386AG of the Companies Act);
- keep the particulars in its register of registrable controllers up-to-date by sending notices to registrable controllers whose particulars the company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe have changed or is inaccurate (sections 386AH and 386AI of the Companies Act); and

- produce the register of registrable controllers and any related document to the Registrar, an officer of ACRA or a public agency, upon request (section 386AM of the Companies Act).

Please note that the register of registrable controllers is different from both the electronic register of members of private companies that is kept by ACRA and the registers of members that public companies keep themselves. These are all separate registers. A public company must keep both a register of members and a register of registrable controllers. For example, a member of a company whose particulars are kept in the register of members must also be recorded in the register of registrable controllers if that member is a controller of the company. A private company must keep a register of registrable controllers even though its register of members is kept with ACRA.

Please also note that the register of registrable controllers, the register of nominee directors¹ and the register of nominee shareholders² are separate and distinct registers. The definitions of “registrable controller”, “nominee director” and “nominee shareholder” are also different. Depending on the facts and circumstances of a case, an individual may be any, all or none of these entities. The fact that an individual is a registrable controller does not by itself mean that the same individual is a nominee director or nominee shareholder, and vice versa.

2.1 Exemptions

The following locally-incorporated companies are exempted:

- (a) a public company which shares are listed for quotation on an approved exchange in Singapore³;

² Please refer to the ACRA-issued Guidance for companies on registers of nominee shareholders.

³ i.e. Singapore Exchange.

- (b) a company that is a Singapore financial institution⁴;
- (c) a company that is wholly-owned by the Government of Singapore;
- (d) a company that is wholly-owned by a statutory body established by or under a public Act⁵ for a public purpose;
- (e) a company that is a wholly-owned subsidiary⁶ of a company mentioned in sub-paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d);
- (f) a company which shares are listed on a securities exchange in a country or territory outside Singapore and which is subject to — (i) regulatory disclosure requirements; and (ii) requirements relating to adequate transparency in respect of its beneficial owners, imposed through stock exchange rules, law or other enforceable means.

Companies subject to requirements similar to the substantial shareholder notification and disclosure requirements under Part 7 of the Securities and Futures Act 2001 that listed companies have to comply with would qualify under (f).

⁴ For the definition of “Singapore financial institution”, please see paragraph 2 of the Fourteenth Schedule to the Companies Act.

⁵ “Public Act” refers to a public Act passed by the Parliament of Singapore, and not a legislation passed by a foreign government.

⁶ Please see section 5B of the Companies Act, which contains the rules to be used to determine whether a company is a wholly-owned subsidiary of another company. For your easy reference, we reproduce section 5B below:

Definition of wholly owned subsidiary

5B. For the purposes of this Act, a corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of another corporation if none of the members of the first-mentioned corporation is a person other than —

- (a) that other corporation;
- (b) a nominee of that other corporation;
- (c) a subsidiary of that other corporation being a subsidiary none of the members of which is a person other than that other corporation or a nominee of that other corporation; or
- (d) a nominee of such subsidiary.

Companies that are undergoing winding up, receivership, judicial management, or striking off are not exempted, unless they qualify under one of the categories in (a)-(f).

Please note that the exemptions only apply to the requirements on a company keeping a register of registrable controllers⁷; they do not apply to the registrable controller's duty to provide information⁸. For example, a company X that is a Singapore financial institution is not required to keep a register of registrable controllers, but if X is a registrable controller of a company Y that is not exempted from the requirements on keeping a register of registrable controllers, then X is required to provide its information to Y, and X's particulars are required to be contained in Y's register of registrable controllers.

3. MAINTAINING A REGISTER OF REGISTRABLE CONTROLLERS

3.1 Timelines

Companies are required to each maintain a register of registrable controllers within the following timelines:

- Companies incorporated on or after 31 March 2017: within 30 days after the date of incorporation;
- Existing companies incorporated before 31 March 2017: within 60 days after 31 March 2017;
- Companies which are not required to maintain the register but are subsequently required to do so: within 60 days after the date of being required to maintain the register. For example, a company that was listed on Singapore Exchange but is subsequently delisted must keep a register of registrable controllers within 60 days of being delisted.

⁷ See sections 386AF to 386AI of the Companies Act.

⁸ See sections 386AJ and 386AK of the Companies Act.

3.2 Location of register

Companies may keep their registers of registrable controllers at (i) their registered offices or (ii) the registered offices of any registered filing agent appointed by the company for the purpose of keeping the register of registrable controllers.

As part of the annual return filing, companies are required to declare whether the company is keeping its register of registrable controllers at its registered office or the registered office of its appointed registered filing agent. The company is not required to lodge, inform or update ACRA about the address of the location where the register of registrable controllers is kept.

If a company appoints a registered filing agent to help the company keep its register of registrable controllers and the registered filing agent subsequently resigns, the registered filing agent should hand over the register to the company, who may appoint another registered filing agent for the purpose of keeping the register.

3.3 Form of register

Companies may keep their registers electronically or in hardcopy format. Companies are required to comply with the form of the register as prescribed in the Regulations. A template is at Annex A. The exact formatting of the register may vary from Annex A, as long as the form as prescribed in the Regulations is complied with.

4. TAKING REASONABLE STEPS AND SENDING OUT NOTICES

4.1 Taking reasonable steps

Companies are required to take reasonable steps to find out and identify their registrable controllers. This means a company must minimally send out a notice to each member and each director of the company annually. A copy of this notice is at Annex B.

If a registrable controller or a person who knows the identity of a registrable controller already gave the requisite information to the company and this information is accurate, the company need not send the notice to that person.

4.2 Sending out notices

The two types of notices that may be sent are prescribed in the Regulations; for convenient reference, a copy is at Annexes B and C.

The notice at Annex B should be sent to individuals and legal entities that the company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe are registrable controllers of the company.

The notice at Annex C should be sent to individuals and legal entities that the company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that they know or have reasonable grounds to know the identity of a person who is a registrable controller of the company or is likely to have that knowledge.

Companies may send the notice electronically or in hardcopy format. There is no legal requirement for the notice to be sent via registered mail. The notice need not be signed by a director or secretary of the company.

Companies are strongly encouraged to document the sending of notices and the receipt of replies to notices.

5. ENTERING PARTICULARS INTO THE REGISTER OF REGISTRABLE CONTROLLERS

5.1 When to enter particulars

Companies are required to enter/update particulars of registrable controllers into their registers of registrable controllers within 2 business days after the particulars have been “confirmed”.

For registrable controllers whose particulars are not stated in the register⁹, particulars are confirmed if:

⁹ See paragraphs 4.1 to 4.2.

- the registrable controller (X) or a registered filing agent (acting on behalf of X) replies to a notice confirming that X is a registrable controller and provides X's particulars to the company; or
- X notifies the company that he is a registrable controller and provides his particulars to the company.

For registrable controllers whose particulars as stated in the register are outdated¹⁰, particulars are confirmed if:

- the registrable controller (X) or a registered filing agent (acting on behalf of X) replies to a notice confirming that a change in X's particulars that are stated in the register of registrable controllers has occurred and provides X's new particulars to the company; or
- X notifies the company that a change in X's particulars that are stated in the register of registrable controllers has occurred and provides X's new particulars to the company.

For registrable controllers whose particulars as stated in the register are inaccurate¹¹, particulars are confirmed if the registrable controller (X) or a registered filing agent (acting on behalf of X) replies to a notice confirming that X's particulars that are stated in the register of registrable controllers are incorrect and provides X's correct particulars to the company.

If the particulars of a registrable controller are not confirmed, a company must enter or update the particulars that the company has in its possession into its register with a note indicating that the particulars have not been confirmed by the registrable controller. This must be done within 2 business days after the end of 30 days after the date on which the notice is sent by the company to the registrable controller.

¹⁰ See paragraphs 6.1 to 6.2.

¹¹ See paragraphs 6.1 to 6.2.

For example, if a company sends a notice to a registrable controller and the registrable controller does not reply to the notice and confirm that he is a registrable controller even though he is a registrable controller, the company should enter the particulars of the registrable controller that the company has in its possession into the register with a note indicating that the particulars have not been confirmed by the registrable controller.

5.2 Particulars to be entered

The particulars to be entered in the register are as follows:

For registrable individual controllers

- full name;
- aliases, if any;
- residential address;
- nationality;
- identity card number or passport number;
- date of birth;
- date on which the registrable individual controller became an individual controller of the company; and
- date on which the registrable individual controller ceased to be an individual controller of the company, if applicable.

For registrable corporate controllers

- name;
- unique entity number issued by the Registrar, if any;
- address of registered office;
- legal form of the registrable corporate controller¹²;

¹² “Legal form of the registrable corporate controller” refers to the type of legal entity that the registrable corporate controller is. For example, if a registrable corporate controller is a private company incorporated under the Singapore Companies Act, then the “legal form” of this registrable corporate controller should be indicated as “Private company”.

- jurisdiction where, and statute¹³ under which, the registrable corporate controller is formed or incorporated;
- name of the corporate entity register of the jurisdiction where the registrable corporate controller is formed or incorporated, if applicable;
- identification number or registration number of the registrable corporate controller on the corporate entity register of the jurisdiction where the registrable corporate controller is formed or incorporated, if applicable;
- date on which the registrable corporate controller became a corporate controller of the company; and
- date on which the registrable corporate controller ceased to be a corporate controller of the company, if applicable.

The date on which an individual or legal entity becomes/ceases to be a registrable controller (that is entered into the register of registrable controllers) should be the actual date that the person becomes/ceases to be a controller, which has to be on or after 31 March 2017 as the law commences on that date.

The following are some examples of the name of corporate entity register of the jurisdiction where the registrable corporate controller is formed or incorporated:

- If the registrable corporate controller is a local company incorporated under the Companies Act, the name of the register would be the Accounting and Corporate Regulatory Authority.
- If the registrable corporate controller is a company incorporated under the United Kingdom's Companies Act 2006, the name of the register would be UK Companies House.

¹³ "Statute under which the registrable corporate controller is formed or incorporated" refers to the legislation under which the registrable corporate controller is formed or incorporated.

5.3 Companies that are of the view that they have no registrable controllers or are unable to identify a registrable controller

Companies are required to find out and identify their registrable controllers under section 386AG of the Companies Act.

Where a company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that (a) the company has no registrable controller; or (b) the company has a registrable controller but has not been able to identify the registrable controller, each director with executive control¹⁴ and each chief executive officer¹⁵ (“CEO”) of the company is taken to be a registrable controller of the company.

This means that the company must enter the following in its register of registrable controllers:

(a) a note stating —

(i) that the company knows, or has reasonable grounds to believe, as the case may be — (A) that the company has no registrable controller; or (B) that the company has a registrable controller but has not been able to identify the registrable controller; and

(ii) that each director with executive control and each CEO of the company is taken to be a registrable controller of the company; and

(b) the particulars of each director with executive control and each CEO of the company.

The particulars of a director with executive control or CEO are:

- full name;
- aliases, if any;

¹⁴ Please refer to paragraph 7.15 of this Guidance which explains who is a director with executive control of a company.

¹⁵ Please refer to paragraph 7.15 of this Guidance which explains who is a CEO of a company.

- residential address;
- nationality;
- identity card number or passport number;
- date of birth;
- date on which the director with executive control or CEO is taken to be a registrable controller of the company; and
- date on which the director with executive control or CEO is no longer taken to be a registrable controller of the company, if applicable.

The company must enter the note and particulars in its register of registrable controllers within 2 business days after the date on which the company (i) knows, or has reasonable grounds to believe that the company has no registrable controller; or (ii) having taken the reasonable steps required by section 386AG(1) of the Companies Act¹⁶, forms the opinion that it is unable to identify the registrable controller.

The company must update its register of registrable controllers for any changes in the particulars within 2 business days after the date on which the company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that the change to the particulars has occurred¹⁷.

If the company subsequently enters the particulars of a registrable controller into its register of registrable controllers¹⁸, it must, at the same time, enter in its register of registrable controllers a note stating (a) that each director with executive control and each CEO of the company is no longer taken to be a registrable controller of the company; and (b) the date on which the particulars of the registrable controller were entered in its register of registrable controllers.

¹⁶ Please see paragraphs 4.1 and 4.2 of this Guidance.

¹⁷ For avoidance of doubt, the requirements for a company to (a) take reasonable steps and send out notices; and (b) keep particulars up-to-date and correct inaccuracies as described in paragraphs 4.1 to 4.2 and 6.1 to 6.2 of this Guidance respectively do not apply to the particulars of a director with executive control and a CEO mentioned in this paragraph. For example, a company is not required to send the notice mentioned in paragraphs 4.2 or 6.2 to its director(s) with executive control or CEO(s).

¹⁸ Please see paragraph 5.1 of this Guidance.

6. KEEPING PARTICULARS UP-TO-DATE AND CORRECTING INACCURACIES

6.1 Duty to keep particulars up-to-date and correcting inaccuracies

Companies are required to (i) keep the particulars in their registers up-to-date and (ii) correct inaccuracies in the particulars.

Companies are advised to review and update their registers annually by checking with every registrable controller whose particulars are contained in the register on whether a relevant change¹⁹ has occurred in the particulars and whether any of the particulars are incorrect. A company is required to send a notice to a registrable controller if the company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe a relevant change has occurred in the particulars of the registrable controller²⁰ or the particulars of the registrable controller are incorrect²¹.

If a company has received credible information (e.g. from newspaper reports or law enforcement authorities) that the particulars of a registrable controller are outdated or inaccurate, the company should send a notice to the registrable controller.

If the company knows for a fact that there are no relevant changes in the particulars of a registrable controller and the particulars are correct, the company need not send the notice. Companies are advised to document why it is satisfied that no relevant changes have occurred in the particulars of registrable controllers and the particulars are correct, as supporting documents may be requested by public agencies upon inspection of the registers.

If a registrable controller already confirmed to the company that its particulars are up-to-date or gave the requisite updated information to the company, the company need not send the notice to the registrable controller.

¹⁹ A relevant change occurs if (i) an individual or legal entity ceases to be a registrable controller in relation to the company or (ii) any other change occurs as a result of which the particulars of the registrable controller in the company's register of registrable controllers are incorrect or incomplete.

²¹ A copy of the notice is at Annex E.

6.2 Sending out notices

The notices are prescribed in the Regulations; a copy of the notice for updates is at Annex D and a copy of the notice for corrections is at Annex E.

Companies may send the notice electronically or in hardcopy format. There is no legal requirement for the notice to be sent via registered mail. The notice need not be signed by a director or secretary of the company.

Companies are strongly encouraged to document the sending of notices and the receipt of replies to notices.

7. WHO IS A REGISTRABLE CONTROLLER OF A COMPANY?

7.1 Registrable controller

“Registrable” controllers of a company are required to be registered in the company’s register of registrable controllers.

A controller (A) of a company (X) is registrable, unless:

- (a) A’s significant interest in or significant control over X is only through one or more controllers (B) of X;
- (b) A is a controller of B (or each B if more than one); and
- (c) B (or each B if more than one) is either –
 - i. a company or foreign company which is required to keep a register of registrable controllers under the Companies Act;
 - ii. a company or foreign company that is exempted from the requirement to keep a register of registrable controllers under the Fourteenth and

Fifteenth Schedules to the Companies Act respectively;

- iii. a corporation which shares are listed for quotation on an approved exchange under the Securities and Futures Act 2001;
- iv. a limited liability partnership which is required to keep a register of registrable controllers of limited liability partnerships under the Limited Liability Partnerships Act 2005;
- v. a limited liability partnership that is exempted from the requirement to keep a register of registrable controllers of limited liability partnerships under the Sixth Schedule to the Limited Liability Partnerships Act 2005;
- vi. a trustee of an express trust to which Part 7 of the Trustees Act 1967 applies; or
- vii. a variable capital company incorporated under the Variable Capital Companies Act 2018.

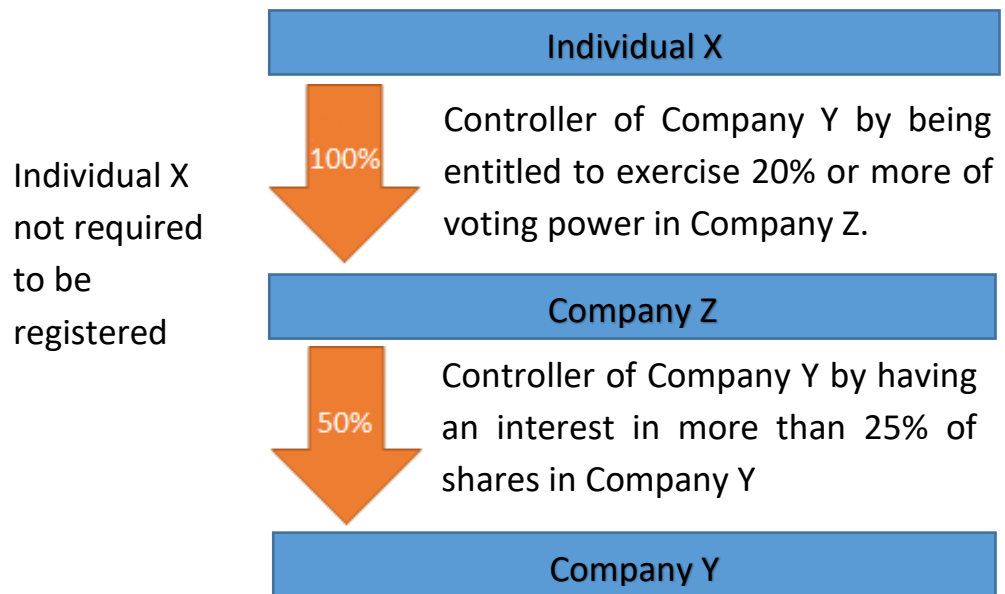

The criteria in (a), (b) and (c) must be fulfilled before a controller may be considered as not registrable with respect to a company.

The requirement that controllers of a company must be “registrable” before their particulars are captured in the register of registrable controllers of that company helps avoid duplicative reporting.

Example 1: If (i) individual X is a controller of a company Y only because he wholly owns company Z which in turn has an interest in 50% of the shares in company Y²² and (ii) company Z is required to keep a register of registrable controllers, individual X is not a registrable controller with respect to company Y and so individual ²² See paragraphs 7.4 and 7.11.

X's particulars are not required to be contained in company Y's register of registrable controllers.

Individual X's particulars would instead be captured in company Z's register of registrable controllers.

Example 2: If individual X is a controller of a company Y not only because he wholly owns company Z which in turn has an interest in 50% of the shares in company Y, but also because he himself has an interest in 5% of the shares in company Y²³, then individual X is a registrable controller with respect to company Y and so individual X's particulars are required to be contained in company Y's register of registrable controllers.

²³ See paragraphs 7.4 and 7.11.

Individual X's particulars would also be captured in company Z's register of registrable controllers.

7.2 Definition of individual and corporate controllers

Controllers may be individual or corporate controllers. By default, all controllers are registrable in the respective registers of controllers²⁴.

An individual controller is an individual who has a significant interest in, or significant control over, the company²⁵.

A corporate controller is a legal entity which has a significant interest in, or significant control over, the company. A legal entity is any body corporate formed or incorporated or existing in Singapore or outside Singapore and includes a foreign company registered under the Companies Act²⁶. Where the entity in question is formed or incorporated or existing outside Singapore, whether the entity is a body corporate is determined by the relevant foreign law. If the entity is not a body corporate under the foreign law, then the entity would not be capable of being a corporate controller.

²⁴ See paragraph 7.1.

²⁵ E.g. a bankrupt individual is capable of being an individual controller of a company.

Please note that individual controllers who have significant interest in, or significant control over, a company indirectly through a legal entity or a chain of legal entities must by default²⁷ be recorded in the register of registrable controllers of the company.

7.3 Significant interest and significant control

For companies with share capital, an individual or legal entity has a “significant interest” in the company if the individual or legal entity:

- i. has an interest in more than 25% of the shares in the company; or
- ii. has an interest in one or more voting shares in the company and the total votes attached to that share, or those shares, is more than 25% of the total voting power in the company.

For companies without share capital, an individual or legal entity has a “significant interest” in a company if the individual or legal entity holds, whether directly or indirectly, a right to share in more than 25% of the capital, or more than 25% of the profits, of the company.

For all companies, an individual or legal entity has a “significant control” over a company if the individual or legal entity:

²⁶ E.g. (a) a company limited by guarantee incorporated under the Companies Act; (b) a variable capital company incorporated under the Variable Capital Companies Act 2018; (c) a company incorporated under the Companies Act that is in liquidation; (d) a trustee that is a legal entity; and (e) a foreign government that is a legal entity, are capable of being a corporate controller of a company. A limited partnership registered under the Limited Partnerships Act 2008 and a sub-fund of a variable capital company incorporated under the Variable Capital Companies Act 2018 are not legal entities and hence are incapable of being a corporate controller of a company.

²⁷ See paragraph 7.1.

- i. holds the right, directly or indirectly, to appoint or remove the directors of the company who hold a majority of the voting rights at meetings of the directors on all or substantially all matters;
- ii. holds, directly or indirectly, more than 25% of the rights to vote on those matters that are to be decided upon by a vote of the members of the company; or
- iii. has the right to exercise, or actually exercises, significant influence or control over the company.

7.4 Significant interest: (i) Interest in more than 25% of the shares in a company with share capital

This only applies to companies with share capital.

Companies should review their registers of members and constitution. The information in the register of members and the constitution will help the company to determine whether any individual/legal entity has an interest in more than 25% of the shares in the company.

In respect of the threshold of more than 25% of the shares in the company, no distinction is made between e.g. different classes of shares (e.g. ordinary shares and preferences shares; shares denominated in different currencies) or shares having different market values, so the company should consider all the shares of the company that an individual/legal entity has an interest in and add them together in determining whether the individual/legal entity has an interest in more than 25% of the shares in the company.

Please see paragraphs 7.11 to 7.14 of this Guidance for more information on paragraph 4 of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act, which sets out the rules that apply in determining whether an individual/legal entity has an “interest” in share(s) of a company, as well as addresses special situations such as joint interests, joint arrangements and nominees.

7.5 Significant interest: (ii) Interest in voting share(s) with more than 25% of the total voting power in a company with share capital

This only applies to companies with share capital.

The Companies Act provides that a share in a company confers on the holder of the share the right to one vote on a poll at a meeting of the company on any resolution²⁸, but subject to certain requirements being met²⁹, different voting rights may be accorded to different shares. The constitution of a company may set out the voting rights attached to the company's shares.

Companies should review their registers of members and constitution. The information in the register of members and the constitution will help the company to determine whether any individual/legal entity has an interest in voting shares with more than 25% of the total voting power in the company.

Please note that (i) treasury shares and (ii) shares mentioned in section 21(4B) or (6C) of the Companies Act³⁰ should not be included in determining whether an individual/legal entity has an interest in voting shares with more than 25% of the total voting power in the company.

Please see paragraphs 7.11 to 7.14 of this Guidance for more information on paragraph 4 of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act, which sets out the rules that apply in determining whether an individual/legal entity has an "interest" in share(s) of a company, as well as addresses special situations such as joint interests, joint arrangements and nominees.

²⁸ See section 64.

²⁹ See sections 64 and 64A.

³⁰ These are shares in a holding company that are held by a subsidiary of the holding company in certain circumstances stipulated in section 21.

7.6 Significant interest: (iii) Right to share in more than 25% of the capital or profits of a company without share capital

This only applies to companies without share capital (e.g. companies limited by guarantee).

The constitution of a company may provide for the distribution of the capital and/or profits of the company. Companies should review their registers of members and constitution. The information in the register of members and the constitution will help the company to determine whether any individual/legal entity holds the right to share in more than 25% of the capital or profits of the company.

This criterion of significant interest encompasses both direct and indirect holding of the right to share in more than 25% of the capital or profits of the company. For indirect holdings, please see paragraph 7.10 of this Guidance for more information.

Please also see paragraphs 7.12 to 7.14 of this Guidance for more information on paragraph 4 of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act, which addresses special situations such as joint holdings, joint arrangements and nominees.

7.7 Significant control: (i) Right to appoint or remove directors who hold a majority of voting rights at meetings of the directors

Companies should consider whether any individual/legal entity has the right to appoint or remove directors who hold a majority of voting rights at meetings of the directors. The constitution of a company usually sets out how directors are to be appointed and/or removed. For public companies, the Companies Act contains provisions that govern how directors are to be appointed or removed³¹. The constitution also usually sets out the voting rights of directors at meetings of the directors (e.g. each director to have one vote; or different directors have different voting rights on all or most matters).

Companies should review their registers of members and constitution. The information in the register of members and the constitution will help the company to determine whether any individual/legal entity has the right to appoint or remove directors who hold a majority of voting rights at meetings of the directors.

This criterion of significant control encompasses both direct and indirect holding of the right to appoint or remove directors who hold a majority of voting rights at meetings of the directors. For indirect holdings, please see paragraph 7.10 of this Guidance for more information.

Please also see paragraphs 7.12 to 7.14 of this Guidance for more information on paragraph 4 of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act, which addresses special situations such as joint holdings, joint arrangements and nominees.

7.8 Significant control: (ii) More than 25% of the rights to vote on those matters that are to be decided upon by the members of the company

Companies should review their constitution and consider whether any individual/legal entity has more than 25% of the right to vote on those matters that are to be decided upon by the members of the company.

The Companies Act requires certain matters to be decided upon by the members of the company, usually through the passing of an ordinary or special resolution³². In addition, the constitution of a company may require certain matters to be also decided upon by the members of the company. The right to vote may be exercised in different ways (e.g. at general meetings or through written resolutions). The constitution of a company may set out the person(s) who have the right to vote on matters that are to be decided upon by the members of the company.

This criterion of significant control encompasses both direct and indirect holding of the right to vote on those matters that are to be decided upon by the members of the company. For indirect holdings, please see paragraph 7.10 of this Guidance for more information.

Please also see paragraphs 7.12 to 7.14 of this Guidance for more information on paragraph 4 of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act, which addresses special situations such as joint holdings, joint arrangements and nominees.

7.9 Significant control: (iii) Right to exercise or actually exercises significant influence or control over the company

An individual/legal entity that does not meet the criteria set out in paragraphs 7.4 to 7.8 may meet this criterion instead. Please refer to paragraphs 8.1 to 8.5 of this Guidance for further explanation of this criterion.

In assessing whether there are individuals and/or legal entities that meet this criterion, companies should (i) review all the relevant documents and information at their disposal (e.g. constitution; register of members; and register of directors and chief executive officers) and all the circumstances relating to the company; and (ii) consider and apply the principles, factors and examples described in paragraphs 8.1 to 8.5.

Please also see paragraphs 7.12 to 7.14 of this Guidance for more information on paragraph 4 of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act, which addresses special situations such as joint holdings, joint arrangements and nominees.

7.10 Indirect holding

An individual/legal entity may indirectly hold (i) the right to share in more than 25% of the capital or profits of the company³³; (ii) the right to appoint or remove directors who hold a majority of voting rights at meetings of the directors³⁴; and/or (iii) the right to vote on those matters that are to be decided upon by the members of the company³⁵.

Companies should consider whether the individual/legal entity holds the right indirectly through a legal entity or chain of legal entities. For example, a registrable individual controller that indirectly holds the right to appoint or remove the directors of company X who hold a majority of voting rights at meetings of the directors through a chain of legal entities would by default³⁶ have to be recorded in X's register of registrable controllers.

An individual/legal entity holds a right indirectly if the individual/legal entity has a "majority stake" in a legal entity and that legal entity -

- i. holds that right; or
- ii. is part of a chain of legal entities each of which (other than the last) has a majority stake in the entity immediately below it in the chain, and the last of which holds the right in that right.

A has a majority stake in B if:

- i. A holds a majority of the voting rights in B;
- ii. A is a member of B and has the right to appoint or remove a majority of the board of directors of B;

³³ See paragraph 7.6.

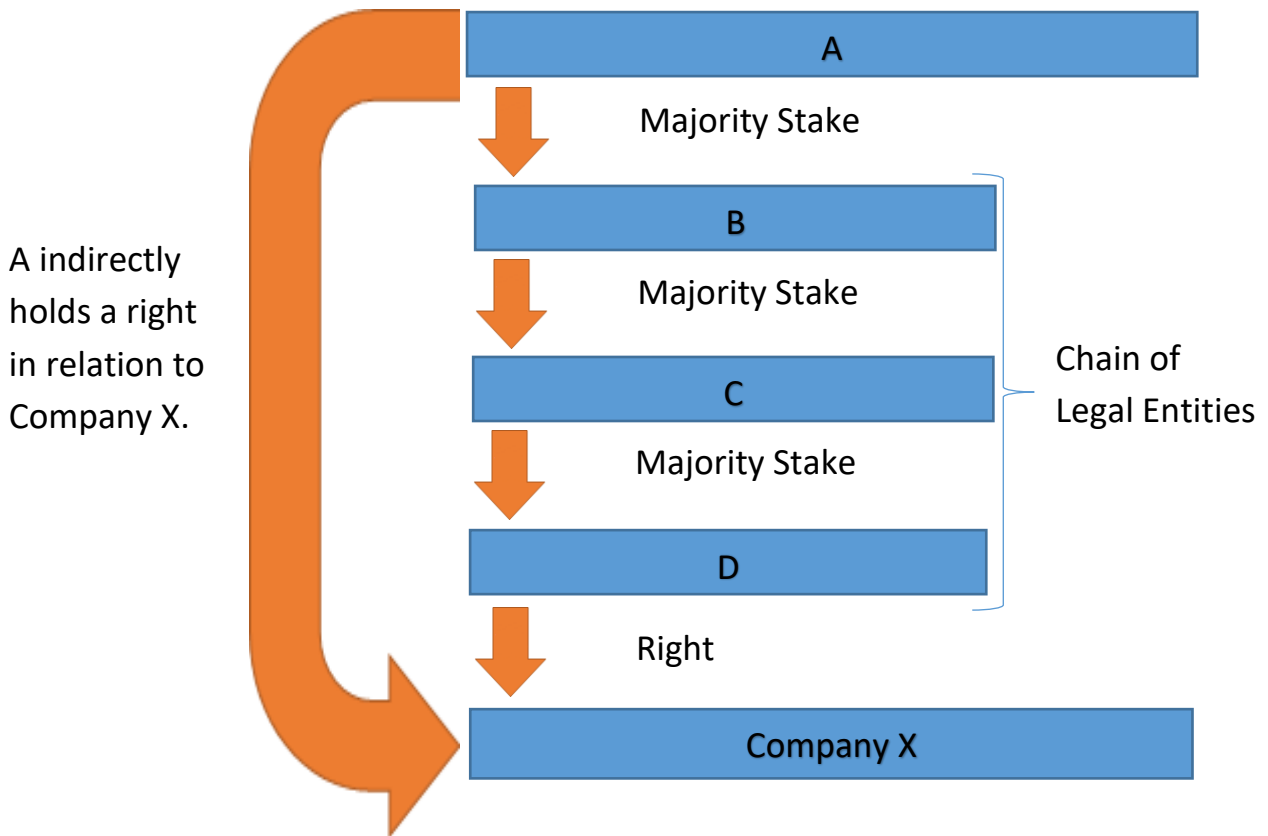

³⁴ See paragraph 7.7.

³⁵ See paragraphs 7.8.

³⁶ See paragraph 7.1.

- iii. A is a member of B and controls alone a majority of the voting rights in B; or
- iv. A has the right to exercise, or actually exercises, significant influence or control over B³⁷.

Illustration of indirect holding of a right:

7.11 “Interest”

In determining whether an individual/legal entity has an “interest” in share(s) of the company, companies should, subject to sections described in paragraphs 7.12 to 7.14, apply sections 7(1A) to (6A), (8), (9) and (10) of the Companies Act³⁸.

³⁷ See paragraphs 8.1 to 8.5.

³⁸ See paragraph 4(1) of the Sixteenth Schedule to the Companies Act. Section 7 is well-established. In addition to the register of registrable controllers, section 7 applies to Division 4 of Part 4 (substantial

The general rule is that an individual/legal entity has an interest in shares if he/it has authority (whether formal or informal, or express or implied) to dispose of, or to exercise control over the disposal of, those shares³⁹. It is immaterial that the authority of an individual/legal entity to dispose of, or to exercise control over the disposal of, particular shares is, or is capable of being made, subject to restraint or restriction⁴⁰. It is also immaterial, for the purposes of determining whether an individual/legal entity has an interest in a share, that the interest cannot be related to a particular share⁴¹.

Where any property held in trust consists of or includes shares and an individual/legal entity knows, or has reasonable grounds for believing, that he/it has an interest under the trust, he/it shall be deemed to have an interest in those shares⁴². Typically, these individuals and/or legal entities would be the beneficiaries of the trust.

Where a legal entity has, or is deemed to have, an interest in a share and (a) the legal entity is, or its directors are, accustomed or under an obligation whether formal or informal to act in accordance with the directions, instructions or wishes of an individual/legal entity; or (b) an individual/legal entity has a controlling interest in the legal entity, that an individual/legal entity shall be deemed to have an interest in that share⁴³.

shareholdings register) and sections 163 (approval of company required for loans and quasi-loans to, and credit transactions for benefit of, persons connected with directors of lending company, etc), 164 (register of directors' and chief executive officer's shareholdings) and 165 (general duty of directors and chief executive officers to make disclosure). Section 7 is similar to section 4 of the Securities and Futures Act, which applies to Part 7 of the Act on disclosure of interests in corporations listed on approved exchanges, including the register of substantial shareholders that such corporations must keep.

³⁹ Section 7(1A)

⁴⁰ Section 7(1B)

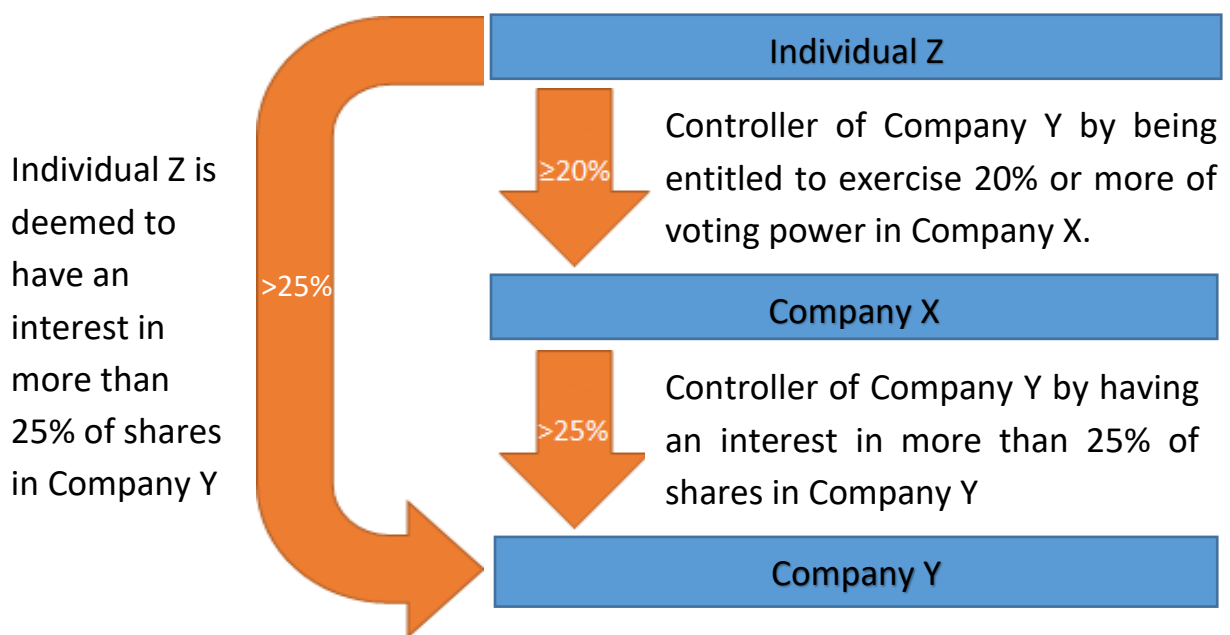

⁴¹ Section 7(8)

⁴² Section 7(2)

⁴³ Section 7(4)

Where a legal entity has, or is by the provisions of section 7 (apart from subsection (4A)) deemed to have, an interest in a share and — (a) an individual/legal entity is; (b) the associates⁴⁴ of an individual/legal entity are; or (c) an individual/legal entity and his/its associates are, entitled to exercise or control the exercise of not less than 20% of the voting power in the first-mentioned legal entity, that individual/legal entity shall be deemed to have an interest in that share⁴⁵.

For example, company X has an interest in more than 25% of the shares in company Y, and individual Z is entitled to exercise or control the exercise of 20% or more of the voting power in company X. Individual Z would be deemed to have an interest in more than 25% of the shares in company Y and is by default⁴⁶ a registrable controller of company Y.

⁴⁴ Section 7(5) provides that a person is an associate of another person if the first-mentioned person is — (a) a subsidiary of that other person; (b) a person who is accustomed or is under an obligation whether formal or informal to act in accordance with the directions, instructions or wishes of that other person in relation to the share referred to in section 7(4A); or (c) a body corporate that is, or a majority of the directors of which are, accustomed or under an obligation whether formal or informal to act in accordance with the directions, instructions or wishes of that other person in relation to the share referred to in section 7(4A).

⁴⁵ Section 7(4A)

⁴⁶ See paragraph 7.1.

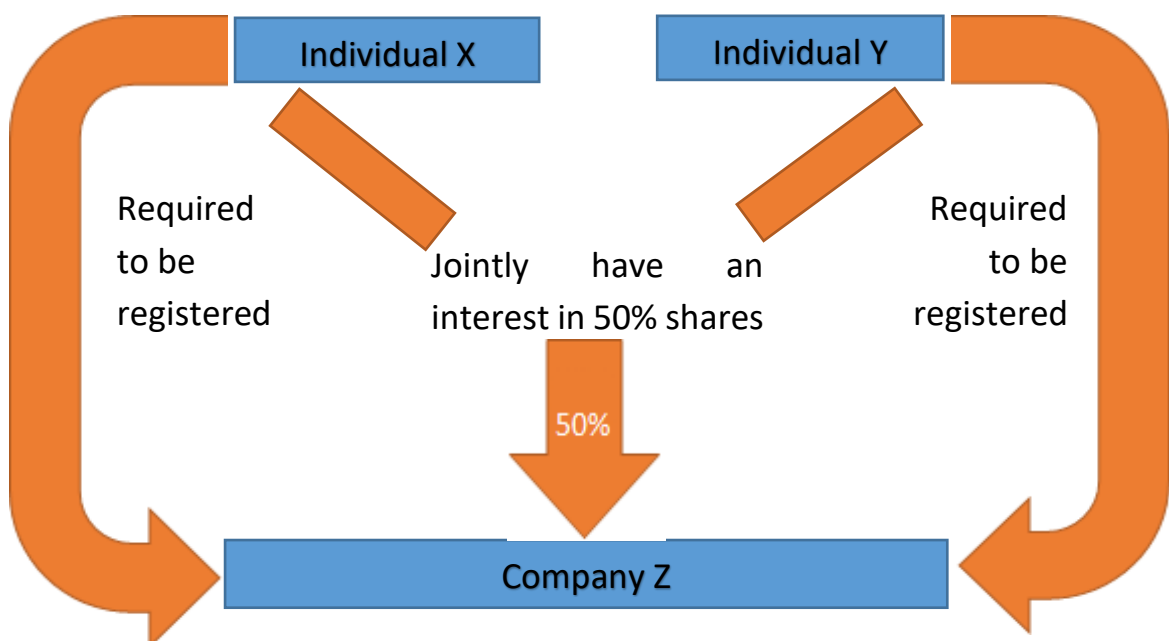

Section 7(6) provides for a list of situations where an individual/legal entity shall be deemed to have an interest in a share (e.g. where an individual/legal entity has entered into a contract to purchase a share).

Section 7(9) provides for a list of situations where an interest in a share may be disregarded (e.g. where the interest is that of an individual/legal entity who holds the share as a bare trustee).

7.12 Joint interest in shares or holding of right

If 2 or more individuals/legal entities jointly have an interest in a share, or jointly hold a right, each is considered as having an interest in that share, or as holding that right, as the case may be.

For example, if individuals X and Y jointly have an interest in 50% of the shares in company Z, both are considered to each have an interest in 50% of the shares in Z, so both are controllers of Z and the particulars of both must by default⁴⁷ be separately entered in Z's register of registrable controllers.

⁴⁷ See paragraph 7.1.

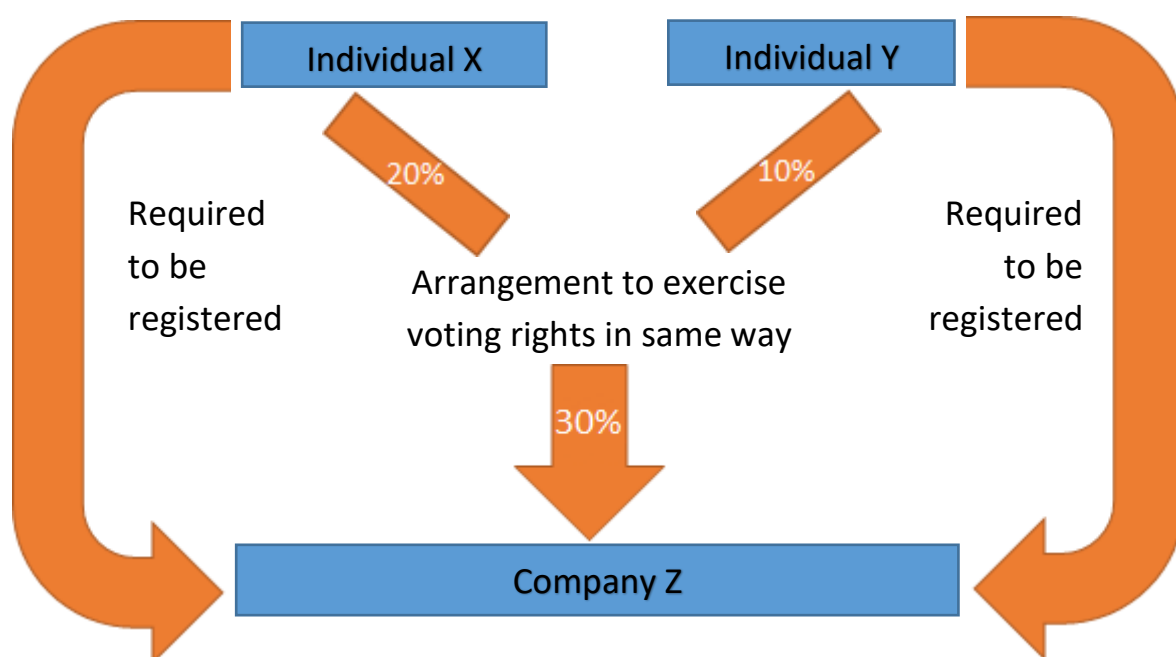

7.13 Joint arrangements

A joint arrangement is an arrangement between 2 or more individuals/legal entities having an interest in shares or between holders of rights that they will exercise all or substantially all the rights conferred by their respective shares (or rights) jointly in a way that is pre-determined by the arrangement.

An arrangement includes (i) any scheme, agreement or understanding, whether or not it is legally enforceable and (ii) any convention, custom or practice of any kind. For something to count as an arrangement, there must be at least some degree of stability about it, so one-off “arrangements” do not qualify.

If 2 or more individuals/legal entities have an arrangement, each of them is treated as having an interest in the combined shares of all of them, or holding the combined rights of all of them, as the case may be.

For example, if individuals X and Y own shares that carry 10% and 20% of the voting rights in company Z respectively, and they have an arrangement between themselves to always exercise their voting rights in the same way, both are treated as having an interest in the combined shares of all of them (i.e. 30%), so both are controllers of Z and the particulars of both must by default⁴⁸ be separately entered in Z's register of registrable controllers.

7.14 Nominees

A share or right held by an individual/legal entity as nominee for another is to be considered as held by the other.

For example, if individual X holds 30% of the shares in company Z as a nominee for individual Y, the shares are considered to be held by Y, so Y (and not X) is a controller of Z and Y's particulars must by default⁴⁹ be entered in Z's register of registrable controllers.

7.15 Directors with executive control and CEOs – situation where no registrable controller with significant influence or significant control has been identified

⁴⁸ See paragraph 7.1.

⁴⁹ See paragraph 7.1.

Where a company knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that (a) the company has no registrable controller; or (b) the company has a registrable controller but has not been able to identify the registrable controller, each director with executive control and each CEO of the company is taken to be a registrable controller of the company and their particulars must be entered into the company's register of registrable controllers⁵⁰.

This paragraph explains who are the director(s) with executive control and who are the CEO(s) of a company.

A director with executive control, in relation to a company, is a director⁵¹ of the company who exercises executive control over the daily or regular affairs of the company through a senior management position⁵².

This could include a director that has the power or authority to make decisions that could:

(i) affect the whole or a significant part of the business of the company (e.g. enter the company into significant contracts; appoint key employees of the company); and/or

(ii) significantly affect the financial standing of the company (e.g. take up a significant loan on behalf of the company; manage key assets of the company).

A CEO, in relation to a company, is any one or more persons, by whatever name described, who — (a) is in direct employment of, or acting for or by arrangement with, the company; and (b) is ⁵⁰ Please refer to paragraph 5.3 of this Guidance which explains the requirement for companies to enter the particulars of the directors with executive control and chief executive officers in their registers of registrable controllers if no individual or legal entity having significant interest in or significant control over the company has been identified.

⁵¹ A director includes any person occupying the position of director of a corporation by whatever name called and includes a person in accordance with whose directions or instructions the directors or the majority of the directors of a corporation are accustomed to act and an alternate or substitute director. See section 4(1) of the Companies Act.

⁵² See section 386AFA(8) of the Companies Act.

principally responsible for the management and conduct of the business of the company, or part of the business of the company, as the case may be⁵³.

8. RIGHT TO EXERCISE OR ACTUALLY EXERCISES SIGNIFICANT INFLUENCE OR CONTROL

8.1 General

An individual/legal entity is a controller of a company if the individual/legal entity (i) has the right to exercise or (ii) actually exercises significant influence or control over the company.

This section explains the above criteria and provides some principles, factors and examples that companies should consider in determining whether an individual/legal entity falls within the criteria. It also provides some examples of roles and relationships that an individual/legal entity may have with a company, which would not, on their own, result in that individual/legal entity meeting the criteria.

This section is not exhaustive. Companies may wish to seek legal advice when in doubt.

8.2 “Significant influence” and “significant control”

Where an individual/legal entity can direct the activities of a company, this would be indicative of “significant control”.

Where an individual/legal entity can ensure that a company generally adopts the activities which the individual/legal entity desires, this would be indicative of “significant influence”.

It is not necessary for an individual/legal entity exercising “significant influence” and/or “significant control” to do so with a view to gaining economic benefits from the policies or activities of the company.

⁵³ See sections 386AFA(8) read with 4(1) of the Companies Act.

8.3 Right to exercise significant influence or control over the company

An individual/legal entity may hold a right to exercise significant influence or control over a company as a result of a variety of circumstances, including the company's constitution, the rights attached to shares or securities which the individual/legal entity holds, a shareholder's agreement, and any other agreement.

The following are some non-exhaustive examples of what might constitute a right to exercise significant influence or control.

- An individual/legal entity has absolute decision making and/or veto rights over decisions relating to the running of the business of the company, such as:
 - Adopting or amending the company's business plan;
 - Changing the nature of the company's business;
 - Making any borrowing from lenders;
 - Appointment or removal of the chief executive officer;
 - Establishing or amending any profit-sharing, bonus or other incentive schemes for directors or employees;
 - Granting options under a share option or other share-based incentive scheme.

8.4 Actually exercises significant influence or control over the company

In determining whether an individual/legal entity actually exercises significant influence or control over a company, all relationships that the individual/legal entity has with the company or the management of the company should be taken into account, to identify whether the cumulative effect of those relationships leads to the individual/legal entity actually exercising significant influence or control over the company.

The following are some non-exhaustive examples of how an individual/legal entity might actually exercise significant influence or control over a company.

- An individual/legal entity is significantly involved in the management and direction of the company.
 - For example, an individual, who is not a member or director of a company, regularly or consistently directs or influences a significant section of the board of directors and/or the chief executive officer of the company; or is regularly consulted on Board decisions and/or by the chief executive officer and whose views influence decisions made by the board and/or the chief executive officer.
- The recommendations of an individual/legal entity is always or almost always followed by members holding the majority of the voting rights in a company, when they are deciding how to vote.
 - For example, the founder of a company's business who is no longer a member or director of the company makes recommendations to the shareholders of the company and these recommendations are always or almost always followed by the shareholders.

8.5 Excepted roles

The following is a non-exhaustive list of roles and relationships which would not, on their own, result in the relevant individual/legal entity being considered to have the right to exercise or actually exercising significant influence or control over a company.

- An individual/legal entity provides advice or direction in a professional capacity, for example, as:
 - Lawyer;

- Accountant;
 - Registered filing agent;
 - Management consultant;
 - Investment manager⁵⁴;
 - Tax advisor; or
 - Financial advisor.
- An individual/legal entity deals with the company under a third party commercial or financial agreement, for example, as:
 - Supplier;
 - Customer; or
 - Lender.
 - An individual/legal entity exercises a function under a law, for example, as:
 - Administrator or executor of a deceased's estate;
 - Regulator;
 - Liquidator;
 - Receiver or manager; or
 - Judicial Manager.
 - An individual who is an employee of the company acting in the course of his or her employment.
 - An individual who is a director of the company.
 - An individual/legal entity which makes recommendations to members of the company on an issue or set of issues on a one-off occasion, which is subject to a vote by the members.

Please note that an individual/legal entity that performs an excepted role may, because of circumstances and factors, still be a controller of a company.

⁵⁴ E.g. an individual or legal entity (e.g. a financial institution) that is engaged to provide professional investment management services to a company (e.g. research and dealing in the company's assets such as securities and bonds on behalf of the company for investment purposes).

For example, a director of a company may also own important assets and/or has key relationships that are important to the running of the company's business (e.g. key intellectual property rights) and uses this additional power to influence the outcome of important decisions related to the running of the business of the company. This individual would not be able to rely on the excepted role of a director, to avoid being considered as a person who has the right to exercise or actually exercises significant influence or control over the company.

9. PRIVACY AND ACCESS TO REGISTERS OF REGISTRABLE CONTROLLERS

9.1 Registers of registrable controllers is not to be made public

Companies must not disclose or make available for inspection the register or any particulars contained in the register to any member of the public. Auditors are also not entitled to have access to the register.

For example, if a member of the public or a member of a company approaches the company and requests for access to the company's register of registrable controllers and the information contained therein, the company must decline the request and not provide such access.

9.2 Registers of registrable controllers must be made available to the Registrar and public agencies

Companies must make available their registers of registrable controllers, the information contained in the registers, and any document relating to the registers and the keeping of the registers⁵⁵ ("supporting documents"), to (i) the Registrar and ACRA

⁵⁵ Section 386AM (1) of the Companies Act states:

"The Registrar or an officer of the Authority may —

(a) require a company or foreign company to which this Part applies to produce its register, its register of nominee directors, its register of nominee shareholders and any other document relating to those registers or the keeping of those registers;

(b) inspect, examine and make copies of the registers and any document so produced; and officers, and (ii) public agencies and their officers (e.g. the Singapore Police Force; the Commercial Affairs Department; the Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau; the Inland Revenue Authority of Singapore).

When approached by these agencies, companies must cooperate with the agencies and provide the requested information and documents to these agencies. Agencies may inspect, examine and make copies of the registers and the supporting documents produced.

The following are some examples of the supporting documents that must be furnished when requested by the agencies. These documents serve to provide confidence that the registers have been kept up-to-date and are accurate.

- if a registrable controller is a Singapore Citizen or Singapore Permanent Resident, a copy of NRIC;
- if a registrable controller is a foreign individual, a copy of passport and document to verify the residential address (e.g. utility bill);
- if a registrable controller is a foreign legal entity that is not registered in Singapore, a copy of the certificate of registration from the jurisdiction of incorporation and, if the registered office address is not shown on the certificate, document to verify the address (e.g. utility bill); and
- records of information received from the registrable controllers that led to their particulars being inserted in the register of registrable controllers. Some examples include (i) replies by registrable controllers to notices that the company sent to them; (ii) any correspondence from registrable controllers that they independently send to the company (i.e., not a reply to a notice) (e.g. emails, hardcopy letters).

(c) make such inquiry as may be necessary to ascertain whether the provisions of this Part are complied with.”
